

Leakproof Cabinet Storage Bins

I keep items that can leak or spill in plastic bins to control the spillage. Harbor Freight sells a bin (Item 62806) that fits into most of the overhead cupboards on my 5.0TA.

The screenshot shows the Harbor Freight website interface. At the top, there is a search bar with the text "What are you looking for today?". Below the search bar, there are navigation links: "All Departments", "Deals", "New Tools", "Join Inside Track Club", "Giving Back", and "Credit Card". The main content area features a large image of a clear plastic stacking bin. To the right of the image, the product name "STOREHOUSE Clear Stacking Bin" is displayed, along with a rating of 5.0 stars and a "Write a Review" link. Below the product name, there is a price tag of "$3.99" and a comparison to a Stanley bin at $6.64, indicating a 40% savings. A green "Add to Cart" button is prominently displayed, along with a quantity selector set to "1". At the bottom of the product information, it states "In Stock at Bellevue, WA" with links for "Store Info" and "Check Nearby Stores".

I suggest that you buy one of these bins and check your cupboards to see where they fit before buying more.

I use Sterilite storage bins (without the lids) in the under sink cabinet and the narrow cabinets just above the floor.

The screenshot shows the Target website product page for a "Sterilite 6qt Clear Storage Box White Lid". The breadcrumb trail at the top reads "Target / Home / Storage & Organization / Storage Tubs & Totes". The product title is "Sterilite 6qt Clear Storage Box White Lid", and there is a link to "Shop all Sterilite". The main image is a large, clear plastic storage box with a white lid. To the left of the main image, there are four smaller thumbnail images: the first shows the box from a different angle, the second shows the box filled with various items, the third is a video player, and the fourth shows the box in a kitchen setting. To the right of the main image, the price is "$1.59", followed by a 5-star rating and a "58" review count. Below the price, there is a "Quantity" selector set to "1".